Physical Appeareance

For the most part, Tulin looks like the average human with nothing special to him. However if you take the time to look, you'll notice some oddities. The biggest thing you'll notice is that his right arm is always wrapped in tons of white bandages and while it's not a huge thing to notice, his right arm does look a bit bigger than his left. This is due to the right arm being the demon's arm and Tulin's efforts to hide it involved just wrapping it up in heavy bandages as the demon wasn't able to make the arm look one hundred percent human due to the circumstances of the two being sewn together. There are several scars on his chest and arms that he's gotten through the years,though they're mainly from when the demon over powered him and used him to destroy the place they were captive at in the effort of revenge but also to just get themselves killed; the later didn't work. When the demon takes control, Tulin's eyes change to a crimson red color. If you're ever able to see underneath the bandages, you'll find the arm looks fairly human despite it being bigger and holding a bit more muscle. However you'll quickly see that the skin has a reddish look to it, like if you kept scratching a particular area for too long. The claws at the ends of his fingers are part of the finger, rather than it being a fingernail ontop of the finger. And at the shoulder, you'll see the scars from where they sewed the arm to him just under his shoulder.

In terms of the normal traits, his eyes are usually a dark brown. He sports short black hair that is for the most part, well kept and out of the way. He has a average build and is often seen wearing a black coat and brown pants the most. His shoes remain black though there are times where his pants will be black and other times they remain brown; just depends on what he just picks up that morning. His left hand has a goldish brown glove over it which hides one of his scars; he can't fit his other hand into the other glove.
