About the Servants Eternal

The Servants Eternal is a small and ancient collective of personalities who served close to the Faceless Baron. The group is comprised of servants, aides, and close friends of the Baron, who watched over them as they aged. As the Barons life began to come to a natural close, the group banded together as one and committed their lives to eternal servitude by transcribing their minds into Artificial Intelligences.

Each AI member was given a high-tech robotic shells to inhabit as well as a set of morals and guidelines to follow as they did in their mortal years. After the passing of the Baron, their task was to keep order while a new leader was found, and keep those leaders in line with the prophecies and limits put forth by their master.

While this plan was successful, the flaws in it eventually came out as the nation of New Incipere fell into turmoil as several struggled for power. After the Servants thwarted an inside attempt at backstabbing the new leader (which ended in the Great Blackout), the members decided a new directive. The Servants split apart, fleeing to different territories, lost colonies, and other forgotten assets of New Incipere to preserve the information of the old ways from the corrupt hands who desired it (and the dangers it entailed).

Since then, the Servants Eternal have not been seen, and have presumed to have found safe havens to hibernate until called upon again.
